What your TA did best to help you learn the material.

- Madhulika Khanna was an amazing TA and I feel that I have learned a lot from her specifically attending her recitations as she goes through the concepts very detailed, we do practice problems with her, and leaves with no unanswered questions. She has been a critical component in my understanding of theories, measures of inequality and poverty and clarifies to the class of any misunderstandings.
- Anecdotes
- Madhulika did a great job of explaining difficult course concepts. She was extremely helpful throughout the course.
- Explained the concepts really well, and was very available during her office hours
- She clearly knows the content well
- She clarified very well the concepts that the majority of the students found hard. She was always optimistic about meeting with her in office hours. She really knew the course material, how to explain it, was a very organized person.
- Madhulika was a phenomenal TA. I went to her office hours on several occasions and always walked away feeling like I truly grasped the material even better. She really knew everything we learned in the course well and did a great job of conveying the material, even the difficult concepts. I thoroughly enjoyed the course and think Madhulika helped explain everything even better in office hours and during recitations.

Define any criticism you have of your TA.

- I don't have any at the moment, and believe she is well-versed in this topic.
- Couldn't understand everything without an Econ background
- None.

- She can come off as condescending. I'm not sure that she even means it to be honest, but sometimes someone doesn't get something and she just doesn't really hide the fact that she can't believe you don't understand it. She also grades unnecessarily hard.
